OWSM SESSION

One Welfare Science Slam Sessions

What are the OWSM sessions?

OWSM sessions are Science Slam sessions specific to the One Welfare concept. In these sessions scientists explain their projects in short 8 minute talks ensuring that the content can be understood by non-scientists. The sessions must be presented in an entertaining way.

What is the objective of the OWSM sessions?

The OWSM sessions are intended to facilitate dissemination of One Welfare research work and projects to non-scientists. This is in order to support broader understanding of the concept.

What are the benefits of presenting my work in an OWSM session?

The OWSM sessions provide you with an opportunity for communication beyond the scientific community. It also helps to develop creativity, innovation and alternative ways of communication around your work. There will also be a prize for the best OWSM session, taking into account the scientific content and entertaining nature of the presentation.

You are your oyster!!

How do I create an OWSM session?

You have 8 minutes to explain your project. You can create a brief story around your project from beginning to end, and dress for the occasion! or alternatively you could identify your key message and up to 3 project highlights that you will describe during the session.

Is there anything I should avoid?

Ensure that the language you use does not include technical words that others outside your research area or profession would not understand. Also, as the focus of OWSM sessions is global you should be mindful and respectful of people, animals and cultural heritage across the world.

Where can I see some examples of what to aim for?

The first “OWSM sessions” took place at the One Welfare World conference in 2021. To see some examples, you can have a look at science slam videos online or check out the OWSM sessions from the conference at the One Welfare Youtube Channel OWSM sessions playlist
